

Yves Mausen

Yves Mausen is professeur agrégé of the faculties of law, professor of philosophy and alumnus of the l'Ecole Normale Supérieure (rue d'Ulm campus, Paris) and currently holds the Chair of legal history and the law of religions at the university of Fribourg (Switzerland). For several years, he was professor of legal history at the university of Montpellier. His main research areas are the Roman-canonical procedure, with a special interest for the position of the defendant or the accused, and the formation of the English common law procedures.