

Professor Jean-Paul Soulillou has been the director of several INSERM Units. He is the head of the Institute of Transplantation at Nantes University HOSPITAL, one of Europe's largest centres for kidney and combined kidney-pancreas transplantions and of RTRS "Centaure", a french translationnal network for transplantation sciences. Jean-Paul Soulillou has been a MEMBER of the INTERNATIONNAL "advisory committee" of the "Immune Tolerance Network" (ITN) of the National Institute of Health, and PAST president of the Medical and Scientific Council of the french transplantation AGENCY ( Etablissement Francais des Greffes, EFG). Jean-Paul Soulillou was also the first European to be invited to join the New Engl J. Medecine Editorial Board and served as Trustee of the internationnal ROTRF fundation. He holds the title of "Exceptional Class Professor" and is a senior member of the "Institut Universitaire de France". He has been awarded of several prizes including the Eloi Collery prize from the French Academy of Medicine, the Rayonnement Français PRIZE and the 2008 Internationnal Award of the Transplant Society for his "outstanding contribution to transplantation science (basic science)". He is the author of more than 450 publications (Pubmed)